Cover Oregon Is Here!

What that means for Reproductive Health Care and Abortion Access

The Affordable Care Act passed by Congress and commonly referred to as ObamaCare, expands coverage of preventive services for women, including services for pregnant women, regardless of income level. Here in Oregon, where our Oregon Health Plan has been on the forefront of the healthcare reform movement for years, we now have Cover Oregon.

There are now 22 covered preventative services for women, including pregnant women. Many of these prevention-related health services, including contraception (although not including abortifacient drugs such as RU-486) and screenings for sexually transmitted infections and both cervical and breast cancer, are covered with no cost sharing (provided free of charge).

All of this is great news for women's reproductive health care in Oregon. For women seeking to terminate their pregnancies, however, the news is not all good. On the bright side Oregon did not do away with public funding of abortion as they did in 21 other states around the country. However, in these early days of the Cover Oregon roll-out many serious concerns are arising about the effect this new system will have on the ability of women seeking coverage under the Oregon Health Plan to access their legal right to obtain an abortion in an expedited manner.

To begin with, the practice of going into DHS offices to apply for OHP has ended. Applications are now available only online. And although apparently pregnant women can still request expedited applications by calling an OHP/Cover Oregon Customer Service Line, this requires the completion of a lengthy additional application. There is also seeming confusion in DHS offices around the state, with some women reporting that they are being told that they can no longer get their applications expedited at all.

All of this is frustrating news for reproductive justice advocates in Oregon who worked hard to get case managers at DHS offices around the state to assist pregnant women in expediting these applications (which is their right under DHS' own policies). It is too soon to tell whether these issues will be resolved as all the kinks are worked out with this new health care system, or if it will be necessary for reproductive justice advocates to take action in order to ensure that pregnant women seeking abortion coverage under the Oregon Health Plan will be able to continue to access these vital services in a timely manner.

The total number of women assisted were:

Oregon 127
 Washington 14
 Idaho 50
 Montana 1

The number of women served by NRO decreased due to the fact that Planned Parenthood of Columbia/Willamette received an anonymous donation of $100,000 to pay for women's abortions. This has enabled NRO to increase the amount they are able to assist each person needing assistance.

Hotline Volunteers spend approximately 15 to 20 hours a week answering and returning calls.

The need in Idaho has increased. There is no Medicaid funding for abortion there, so many women are needing to leave the state for their procedure.

What's Been Happening!

January of 2013 marked the 40th Anniversary of the Supreme Court's landmark Roe V Wade decision. NRO participated in several activities in honor of this important milestone.

The Calyx Doulas of Portland presented "Abortion, Doulas & Reproductive Justice" at In Other Words bookstore as a fundraiser for NRO.

The University of Oregon Students for Choice invited the NRO's Grassroots Health Education Team to make a presentation celebrating "A Herstory of 40 years of Roe V Wade".

Also in Portland NRO volunteers helped to lead an interactive discussion following a special screening of the documentary "Jane: An Abortion Service" held at the Clinton Street Theater.

In February we sadly bid a farewell to Dr. Peter Bours who after many years closed his practice in Eugene. NRO hosted a reception at his office in Eugene attended by donors, volunteers, board members and staff. Dr.

Bours was presented with a certificate recognizing all of the years of service he has dedicated to women's health issues in the State of Oregon. His services will be greatly missed!

Also in February, NRO Grassroots Health Education was invited to present at a Poverty Conference at Pleasant Hill High School. Penny O'Leary lead the discussion with students from 9th to 12th grade. The students were fully engaged and participated with enthusiasm and knowledge.

NRO held its fourth annual Abortion Access bowl-a-thon fundraisers in April. Once again there were events in both Portland and Eugene. Beginning in January, 44 amazing bowlers on 12 teams, and 7 fabulous "virtual" fundraisers came together and worked over several months to solicit donations from 232 family members, friends, co-workers, and supporters of reproductive justice (as well making their own donations to support their fellow teammates)!

Altogether they raised over $9,000 to assist low-income Oregon women to access vital abortion services! In addition ten local businesses in the Eugene and Portland areas contributed over $700 in prizes to the events. (see Bowl-A-Thon 2014 info on Page 6).

Also in April Ninkasi hosted a Pints for a Cause night to benefit NRO.

In June National Network of Abortion Funds (NNAF) held its annual Organizing Summit in Oakland, CA. They sponsor two people from each fund to attend. This year Cecilia Story, a hotline volunteer and new Board member, Jean Schauerman, Hotline Coordinator/Office Assistant and Penny O'Leary, Board President attended. Workshops included, volunteer recruitment and retention, fundraising, advocacy strategies.

August was busy with NRO tabling at PRIDE and also participating in the Eugene Celebration Parade and tabling in the Community Causeway. Volunteers from the community and Students for Choice participated in the events.

NRO's Board has grown to 9 members. In 2013 NRO welcomed Claire Syrett, Eugene City Councilor and Executive Director of Lane Coalition for Healthy Active Youth; Charlotte Behm, Writer and Math Instructor at Lane Community College; Cecilia Story, environmental activist and Hotline Volunteer; Katherine McGuiness, Immunize Oregon Coordinator for the Oregon Health Authority; Jennifer Webster, Community Health Analyst for Lane County, Hotline Volunteer and former NRO staff; Hilary Prager, Midwife with Peacehealth; Starr Miller, Graduate Student with the Planning, Public Policy and Management Department of University of Oregon. Penny O'Leary and Gerald Morsello continued in their roles of President and Treasurer.

Jean Schauerman stepped down from the NRO Board at the end of December 2012 and accepted the part-time position of Hotline Coordinator and Office Assistant in January 2013.

NRO Endorsed Research Project

Bayla Ostrach, a founding NRO Board member and bilingual hotline advocate has recently completed her doctoral field-work research in Spain on abortion accessibility in the public health system of Catalunya. The Network for Reproductive Options served as the fiscal sponsor for this Society for Family Planning-funded research project. Bayla's research examines the lived experiences of Catalan citizens, residents, immigrants, and women from other marginalized populations accessing publicly funded and legal abortion care newly available through the Spanish health system.

Intimate Wars—Merle Hoffman

Book Review: By Gerald Morsello, NRO Board Member

Nearly any autobiography conveys good reading, full of anticipation and analysis. Add to those basics the fact that the author establishes a New York abortion clinic, is founder of the New York Pro-Choice Coalition and weaves a tumultuous love affair into the narrative, and the reader knows that a roller-coaster ride of no small proportions lies ahead. If that wasn't enough, review a little history of England to understand the significance of the author's choosing, at age 10, of England's 16th century Queen Elizabeth as her principal role model. This is the queen who "wanted to be both king and queen of England" at a time when female audacity was nearly non-existent. Keep the queen in mind as you read this fast-paced 2012 autobiography of Merle Hoffman, "The Woman Who Brought Abortion from the Back Alley to the Boardroom."

Although by 1971, when Hoffman began abortion clinic work, abortion was legal in New York, and would become so nationally in 2 years, the battles arise immediately and never end. While the "antis" – the protestors who remain a constant presence on the sidewalk outside the clinic never go away, even more frustrating is the lack of co-operation and downright obstacles erected by the Health Departments of both New York City and State, plus individuals within the Health Insurance Plan of Greater New York, of which Hoffman's Women's Medical Center was a subsidiary.

Sometimes male doctors were problematic, seeing abortion only as a good way to earn money, or so accustomed to being in charge that they failed to see abortion in the context of a women's right to control her reproduction, and thus her life.

As a result of Hoffman's awareness of power imbalances, she established her own set of patient's rights, boldly distributing them to medical groups around New York City. Her proclamation, "Patients Have Rights", affirmed the right to:

- ⇒ Question your Doctor.
- ⇒ Know background, training, and affiliation of your physician.
- ⇒ Know why medicines are being prescribed.
- ⇒ Be assertive enough to ask about purpose, cost, and alternatives to medical tests.
- ⇒ Be in touch with theories of treatment different from your physician's.
- ⇒ Know that rarely is there a single, unchanging medical truth.
- ⇒ Know that choice of treatment is ultimately up to the patient
- ⇒ Privacy and confidentiality.
- ⇒ Not be intimidated by fancy offices, big desks, white coats, or other props of medical power.
- ⇒ Regard the medical establishment as a resource for your health needs.
- ⇒ See your medical records and the freedom to seek other options.
- ⇒ Above all, the knowledge that the right of choice does exist and should be exercised.

Passage of the Hyde Amendment in 1976, removing funding for abortion for women on Medicaid galvanized Hoffman's efforts to speak out on the racial and economic inequalities surrounding abortion. Ever looking for ways to publicize her own and others' ideas on abortion and the empowerment of women, Hoffman for a while published an 8-page Choices Newsletter (Creative Health Organization for Informational, Counseling, and Education Services). From this evolved her own quarterly magazine "On The Issues." Exhilarated by its success, she wrote, co-produced, and directed a 30-minute film "Abortion: A Different Light." By 1986 she created and hosted a feminist talk show by the same name as the magazine, a series of 10 30-minute cable shows syndicated to 11 million homes: the first feminist show on television.

With increasing anti-abortion violence- and Hoffman implicates the media, President Reagan, and Randall Terry's Operation Rescue in this warfare mentality-it was time, she decided, to make a statement that Merle Hoffman is an American journalist, activist, and healthcare pioneer. Described by Blanche Wiesen Cook as someone who "never turned away from the harshest battles or denied the most painful truths," could not be ignored or manipulated. On Sunday 2 April 1989 the Pro-Choice Coalition, with hundreds of supporters, unfurled a banner at the closure of Mass at Saint Patrick's Cathedral affirming that:

- ⇒ Women are full moral agents with the right and ability to choose when and whether they will be mothers.
- ⇒ Abortion is a choice made by each individual for profound personal reasons that no man nor state should judge.
- ⇒ The right to make reproductive choices is women's legacy throughout history and belongs to every woman regardless of age, class, race, religion, or sexual preference.
- ⇒ Abortion is a life-affirming act chosen within the context of women's realities, women's lives, and women's sexuality.
- ⇒ Abortion is often the most moral choice in a world that frequently denies health care, housing, education and economic survival.

By 1992 after noticing an influx of Russian emigrants coming for abortion services, and realizing that abortions were routinely their only method of birth control, Hoffman traveled to Russia with the intent of building Russia's first feminist medical center. Unfortunately, agreement never was reached on the issue of ultimate control, Russian male doctors or Hoffman.

The purpose of Hoffman's final two visits to Russia may come as a shock to readers of Intimate Wars. Without revealing that purpose in this review, to encourage you to read the book, be aware that Hoffman both gained and lost friends as a result.

Merle Hoffman – Not a name known as well as it should be. This book should help correct that.

Hotline Update

NRO has taken another giant step in improving the technology in assisting women. Long-time volunteer and technology guru, Jonathan Arlook took NRO to another level. He created a wonderful internet application using Salesforce for the hotline volunteers to enter all information from calls to the hotline. Jonathan is also responsible for NRO's new Website.

In the past volunteers recorded all relevant information on paper and staff had to re-enter into a database in the office. Now volunteers enter all information online.

This application allows staff to easily download information, efficiently run statistics and reports, saving an enormous amount of staff time that can be devoted to NRO's other projects and activities.

I am 15 and cannot tell my parents. They would kick me out of the house. My boyfriend won't help. I have nowhere to go for help.

I have cancer and when I went in found out I was pregnant and cannot start chemo until I have an abortion. The Oregon Health Plan (OHP) was not helpful and would not be able to assist me in time. I don't have insurance.

Thank you for your assistance. Without NRO, I would not have been able to afford my abortion. I have 3 children, am unemployed and am facing eviction. I cannot thank you enough.

AFTER TILLER

a film by Martha Shane and Lana Wilson

Since the assassination of Dr. George Tiller in Kansas in 2009, there are only four doctors left in the country who provide third-trimester abortions for women. The powerful new documentary AFTER TILLER tells the stories of these doctors who provide this service—often for women dealing with the loss of a planned pregnancy due to fetal anomalies or other medical issues, risking their lives everyday as the number one targets of the pro-life community.

NRO hosted screenings of this documentary in Portland in October and Eugene in November.

“All Above All” Lobby Day in Washington DC

In November, NRO board members and volunteers received full scholarships from the National Network of Abortion Funds (NNAF) to participate in a special “All Above All” Lobby Day in Washington DC hosted by the CAARE Coalition.

They joined with others from around the state to form an Oregon team, and met with U.S. Representatives Suzanne Bonamici and Earl Blumenauer. They shared the stories of women we serve who face many serious financial barriers to accessing abortion services and spoke in support of repealing the Hyde Amendment and of the newly introduced Women's Health Protection Act, which would invalidate many state laws aimed at making abortion less accessible to women.

2014 Bowl-A-Thon

The 5th Annual Abortion Access Bowl-A-Thon is just around the corner!

This is your opportunity to help NRO raise vital funds for our

Women in Need Fund and have a great time doing it!

Events will be held in Portland and Eugene in late April. Dates TBA.

Teams will be forming in January. Think about being a captain or joining a team. You can also help by donating to a member of a team. Or if you don't know anyone bowling, you can donate to our virtual team.

There are many ways to support this fun event. More details will be coming your way soon!

Be thinking about team names, costumes, and people to recruit.

Email office@nroptions.org

if you would like to participate or for more information!

THANK YOU FOR YOUR SUPPORT!

The Network for Reproductive Options gratefully acknowledges that our work providing reproductive options to women in Oregon would not be possible without all of you who generously support our programs!

NRO also extends appreciation to the following foundations for grants awarded in 2011-2012:

- The 100th Monkey Foundation
- The Campbell-Oxholm Foundation
- The Gradison Family Foundation
- The Isis Foundation
- The Jarvey-McCord Foundation
- The L'Chaim Donor Advised Fund of the McKenzie River Gathering Foundation
- The McGeady Family Foundation

The State of Reproductive Justice

Abortion access and reproductive rights has once again been at the forefront of political controversy from the ballot box to the US Congress, and in state-houses across the nation. Here is a synopsis of some of the laws and policy proposals and changes related to reproductive choice and justice that made the news from the 2012 elections up through the fall of 2013.

FEBRUARY

Arkansas enacted one law that bans abortion after 20 weeks and another that prevents plans sold in the new health exchanges from offering comprehensive insurance coverage that includes abortion care.

MARCH

Arkansas enacted a law that expanded its abortion ban to after 12 weeks. The ACLU has challenged this bill in court, along with the ACLU of Arkansas and Center for Reproductive Rights.

North Dakota enacted a trio of laws. One bans abortions after about 6 weeks (before a woman may know she is pregnant), another bans abortions when sought because of the sex of the fetus or because of fetal anomaly, even fatal fetal anomalies, and finally one requires that doctors providing abortions have admitting privileges at local hospitals. This bill is designed to shut down the one clinic in the state.

South Dakota enacted a law that declares the 72 hour waiting period between a woman's first trip to the clinic and her abortion does not toll on a Saturday, Sunday, or holiday.

APRIL

Alabama enacted a law that places onerous and medically unnecessary restrictions on abortion providers -- including a requirement that doctors providing abortions have admitting privileges at local hospitals -- designed to effectively outlaw most of the clinics in the state.

Kansas enacted a sweeping anti-abortion law described by an opponent as "delightful" because it opens so many avenues to obstruct access. This law could force doctors to share information about a supposed link between breast cancer and abortion and aims to impose new taxes on the women who need abortions and the health centers that provide them. It also bans abortion based on the sex of the fetus and includes personhood language that could lay the groundwork for further restrictions.

Montana enacted a law that requires parental consent for a woman under 18 who needs an abortion.

North Dakota US District Court declared 6 week ban unconstitutional so the state legislature enacted a law that bans abortions after 20 weeks.

Virginia enacted a law that prevents plans sold in the new health exchange from offering comprehensive insurance coverage that includes abortion care. In addition the Virginia Board of Health approved regulations to require clinics to become like mini-hospitals, designed to force many to close. At least one clinic has already closed down.

U.S. Senator Kirsten Gillibrand and more than a dozen cosponsors introduced the Military Access to Reproductive Care and Health (MARCH) Act of 2013. If passed this legislation would allow women in the military to use their own money to pay for abortions in military medical facilities. Currently, there is a ban on using private funds to pay for abortions in military hospitals, except in cases of life endangerment, rape or incest. Under the current law, servicewomen who have an unintended pregnancy may be dissuaded from receiving an abortion at facilities outside of the military base because it is an inadequate facility, there are language barriers, lack of availability, or lack of privacy.

BOOKS, BOOKS, BOOKS!

Our library continues to grow, thanks to the generous support and contributions from community members. As always, we would welcome donations of (current or classically important) films and books in good condition on any of the subjects of reproductive health & justice, feminist health, LGBTQA health, sexual health, contraception, menopause, fertility or anything else that seems relevant to a library dedicated to reproductive and sexual health for our community! If you have questions, just call the office!

"If babies had guns, they wouldn't be aborted." U.S. Representative Steve Stockman (TX) tweeted this slogan, calling it his new campaign bumper sticker- April 11, 2013.

MAY

Indiana enacted a law that imposes regulations intended for surgical facilities on clinics that provide only medical abortions. This law may prevent a Planned Parenthood site from continuing to provide abortion care.

"Nobody plans to have an accident in a car accident, nobody plans to have their homes flooded. You have to buy extra insurance for those two." Right to Life of Michigan President Barbara Listing explaining why she believes women should purchase abortion insurance riders if they are concerned that they will need an abortion if they become pregnant as a result of rape. May 2013.

JUNE

Pennsylvania enacted a bill that prevents women from obtaining comprehensive insurance coverage that includes abortion care in the new health care exchanges. The Ohio legislature enacted provisions that aim to make it harder on women to access abortion care. Legislation signed by the Governor would make it more difficult for clinic doctors to obtain written agreements from hospitals confirming hospitals' willingness to accept the doctor's patients in the rare event they need hospital care, even though (or because) hospitals face political pressure to deny such written confirmations. The legislation also includes ultrasound provisions and an attempt to block Planned Parenthood from receiving funding. 6/18/13 20 Week Abortion Ban Passed in the US House

"Women don't get pregnant that often from rape!" U.S. Representative Trent Franks (AZ) in a debate over a federal ban on abortions at 20 weeks of pregnancy- June 2013.

JULY

The Wisconsin legislature enacted a bill that could require a woman seeking an abortion undergo an ultrasound, force doctors to display and describe the ultrasound image to her, and force the doctors performing the abortion to have special hospital privileges that have proven impossible to get in other states. The ACLU, ACLU of Wisconsin, and Planned Parenthood Federation of America have challenged this bill in court. Texas enacted a sweeping anti-abortion bill that could result in the closure of most women's health clinics that provide abortions in the state and block doctors from providing abortion care when needed.

The North Carolina legislature enacted sweeping anti-abortion provisions on an unrelated bill that could force many clinics in the state to close.

AUGUST

District Judge Lisa Davis blocked a law that made emergency contraception less accessible to women in Oklahoma. Passed by the legislature with bipartisan support and signed by Governor Fallin this spring, HB 2226 made Oklahoma the only state with a law keeping the emergency contraceptive Plan B One-Step behind the counter. The law requires that all women show identification to a pharmacist and teens have a prescription in order to purchase the contraceptive. Because of the judge's temporary restraining order, this law did not go into effect as planned and the drugs are available for sale like all other over the counter drugs.

SEPTEMBER

The American Civil Liberties Union, Planned Parenthood Federation of America, the Center for Reproductive Rights and Texas law firm George Brothers Kincaid & Horton filed a lawsuit in federal court on behalf of their clients (over a dozen women's health care providers) to block harmful and unconstitutional provisions of a recently enacted Texas law that would force a third of the health centers that currently offer abortion care to stop providing abortions altogether.

OCTOBER

The American Civil Liberties Union and the ACLU of Kansas and Western Missouri filed a lawsuit challenging a Kansas law that prohibits insurance companies from including coverage for abortion in their comprehensive plans. Since 2010, 13 states have enacted laws that prohibit some or all insurance policies from covering abortion care. This lawsuit is the first challenging one of these laws.

Rather than working on a solution to the government shutdown and looming debt ceiling crisis, House Republicans proposed a measure that requires any health insurance plan offered through Affordable Care Act (ACA) insurance exchanges to disclose whether it provides abortion coverage. . Under the proposal, any abortion coverage provided by any health plan through ACA insurance exchanges would have to be "disclosed to enrollees at the time of enrollment in the plan and shall be prominently displayed in any marketing or advertising materials."

Californians are expected to have better access to abortion care now that Gov. Jerry Brown has signed two new laws, allowing Nurse practitioners, certified nurse midwives, and physician assistants to provide first-trimester abortions and allowing abortion facilities to meet the same standards as primary care clinics.

NRO's Statement on Ending Oppression

As an organization committed to educating and empowering women to understand and control their reproduction, we at NRO wish to acknowledge our duty and responsibility to work toward ending the oppressions in our society that limit a women's right and access to reproductive freedom.

We believe that a woman's right to control her body is fundamental to realizing her equality and her potential as a human being. We also recognize that all forms of oppression have an impact on a women's ability to express herself sexually, make reproductive choices, and enjoy reproductive health throughout her life.

We are, therefore, committed to understanding the ways in which oppression limits the reproductive options of members of our community and to creating an organizational culture that acknowledges the impact of oppression on ourselves and our communities, appreciates and respects the experiences and cultures of others, and develops a climate of equality, empowerment and justice.
